

Architectural Acoustics

Following the advent of both the building regulations and PPG 24, the issue of noise control in housing has never been more important. PPG 24 requires a noise survey to be conducted at the planning stage to assess the overall suitability of the site's noise climate for residential development. With it comes